

The works in this book, by artists, architects, sculptors, scientists, filmmakers and thinkers of all descriptions, attest to the versatility and immediacy of drawing. From first thoughts to finely wrought, elaborate artworks, from the lightest sketch in pencil to bold, gallery-wall installations, the medium is shown as an essential vehicle for creativity.

The recent prominence of artists such as Louise Bourgeois, Eva Hesse, Chris Ofili, Rachel Whiteread, and a host of others who use drawing as a final means of expression, is addressed in both the works shown and essays by curators Kate Macfarlane and Katharine Stout, and art historian Charles Darwent. The Drawing Book takes us on a journey through five themes—measurement, nature, the city, dreams, and the body, selected and introduced by artist Tania Kovats. Each is richly illustrated with a diverse range of images, from the old masters—Leonardo da Vinci, Botticelli, Dürer—through great Modernist pieces by Rodin, Picasso, Matisse, and others, and on to the contemporary artists who are reviving drawing today: a new and unique approach to an age old medium.

Witch (trial sketch), before 1919
 pencil on writing paper
 20 x 16.5 cm

This is an exploration. Through words, signs, drawing. Mescaline is the thing explored.... As for the drawings, I began immediately after the third experiment, they were done with a vibratory movement that stays in you for days and days—automatic, blind, you might say, but thus precisely reproducing the visions I had undergone, going through them once again.

Girl with Fishtails, detail, 2002
gouache on paper
29.5 x 21 cm

Neal Tait presents isolated incidents of narrative in which, as in a dream, unexplained foreign elements intrude. In them there is a sense of significance or meaning, but just beyond reach. The child-like simplicity of these drawings reinforces the impression that they have emerged from a subconscious source.

Ellen Gallagher
Doe, from Deluxe, 2004
mixed media
33 x 25.5 cm

Ellen Gallagher works into the surface of her drawings, cutting, collaging, and obscuring with paint. These advertisements for beauty products, aimed at African American women, offer a new perspective on the feminine ideal; beauty becomes beautification, and the body is modified or imposed upon.

Richard Wilson
20:50, 1986-1987
 graphite/photograph ink on paper
 85 x 60 cm

This drawing relates to Wilson's 20:50, an installation using steel and sump oil housed in the Saatchi Collection, London. In this iconic piece, the viewer walks over a gangway above a lake of oil, which mirrors the space around it. The drawing reflects the artist's three-dimensional work, sharing the same processes of collaging, layering and cutting.
