What inspires artists?

As seen on screen: art and cinema looks at the influence of cinema on art, exploring works from the Arts Council Collection and the Walker Art Gallery's collection. The works represent a broad range of media, including screenprints, photography and film.

Some show stars of the silver screen, such as the actor John Travolta in Anthea Hamilton's Venice Kimono (2012). Others, including House of Women (2017) by Michelle Williams Gamaker and The Desert (1994) by Fiona Banner, reimagine films to explore their impact.

Iconic films are referenced by artworks such as A Nightmare on BAME Street (2018) by Hardeep Pandhal, while cinematic customs take on new meanings in Red Snow (from Screen Portfolio) (1997) by Sam Taylor-Johnson.

As seen on screen is the eighth and final exhibition to be held at the Walker as part of the Arts Council Collection's National Partners Programme 2016-19.

Together, the exhibitions have been seen by more than half a million visitors.
