

DOWNLOAD MAGAZINES

05: Art and Crime

PRINT MAGAZINES

04: The Body

SUBSCRIPTIONS

03: Art and Resistance

ART EVENTS

Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa	Su
				1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15	16	17
18	19	20	21	22	23	24
25	26	27	28	29	30
«	<	Nov 2019			>	»

UPCOMING

Ithell Colquhoun: Surrealism, Occultism & Sexuality
Watch This Space
A Celebration of Talk Talk and Mark Hollis
Bang Face Rave Weekend

Futurism, Vorticism and the Prescience of H.G. Wells (Part Two)

150 YEARS AFTER HIS BIRTH, THE INFLUENCE OF H.G. WELLS ON CONTEMPORARY ART IS STILL BEING FELT.

27/06/2016 Michael Eden Society

The artistic movements of Futurism and Vorticism in Italy and England respectively were bold and brash, they crashed into the art scene of the day with total confidence and absolute violence.

The energy however of F.T. Marinetti's and Wyndham Lewis's art movements flung themselves apart and both, (although more so with Marinetti) flirted with fascism and a so-called hard edged outlook. Although both men later regretted that, they never lost their cynical disdain for both the fatted elite and the lumpen masses. Much of this dash and malice approach, which was also especially present in Nazism, was due to a misinterpretation of the philosopher Nietzsche's 'Super-Man'.

Edwardian society was worrying away at this concept before the war and it is said (Malcolm Palsey) that HG Wells may have introduced the concept of the Übermensch to the British public when he has Ostrong from The Sleeper Awakes say:

The day of democracy is past...the day of the common man is past...this is the second aristocracy. The real one.... Aristocracy, the prevalence of the best – the suffering and extinction of the unfit, and so to better things... The crowd is a huge foolish beast. What if it does not die out? Even if it does not die it can still be tamed and driven. I have no sympathy with servile men.... The hope of mankind – what is it? That some-day the Over-man may come, that some-day the inferior, the weak and the bestial may be subdued or eliminated. The world is no place for the bad, the stupid, the enervated. Their duty – it's a fine duty too! – is to die. The death of failure! That is the path by which the beast rose to manhood, by which man goes on to higher things.... So long as there are sheep Nature will insist on beasts of prey.... The coming of the aristocrat is fatal and assured. The end will be the Over-man-for all the mad protests of humanity....' – Ostrong, Chapter 19 The Sleeper Awakes (1899, 1910)

Of course this identification is not the point of Nietzsche's Übermensch rather he proposes the Übermensch is posited by man as a goal. An interesting modern imagining of a confrontation between the deluded all too human Randian¹ superman and an actual Übermensch occurs in Ridley Scott's Prometheus (2012) where the wealthy Randian businessman and scientist Weyland, after waking up and engaging with the engineer, is violently cast aside as a total irrelevance.

The mistake, the misunderstanding, being that one might assume the mantle of this concept and imagine that understanding the words somehow inured the reader with the superiority of an Übermensch. It's as deluded as imagining that grasping the concept of self-knowledge means you have it.

Wyndham Lewis attempted to reignite the flame of Vorticism with Group X in 1920² but, lacking direction and co-operation from all participants it never got off the ground. He commented:

'But what could be done with an X? Art at the cross-roads? X marks our goal? No. X refused to co-operate. Group X set out, but got nowhere. X marked our beginning and our end,' (Wyndham Lewis and the Cultures of Modernity edited by Dr Nathan Waddell, Ms Alice Reeve-Tucker).

It's not simply a matter of dispensing with Lewis and Marinetti. They both offer a great deal in terms of the work they championed and in the work they produced. We have proposed to take up some of Lewis's and Marinetti's aggression and energy and use that in pursuit of a futurism of the left defined by a critical relationship with the sciences, with architecture, religion and importantly with technology.

Furthermore, the aim is to balance this with positive insights into human potential, without falling foul of the god complex so many flirted with at the turn of the century. Just as Wells (inset above) rescues one from that foible, Lewis can rescue us from the pandering, patronising voice of the popular arts with its great emphasis on dumbing down (see Pop Art, see Jeff Koons, and to a lesser extent Grayson Perry³)

Futurism and Vorticism would have benefited greatly from a relationship with Wells, who was available to them both, and for Lewis being initiated into the 'Intelligentsia', this would have made things much easier. Indeed, they did correspond on a few occasions. Wells praised Lewis's book Childermass and received a polite response, by then however (1928) Vorticism had long burned itself out. Wells might have offered those movements useful antagonism, possible subject matter and above all an exploratory, critical but positive project to follow World War One.

Read On: Part One

1 Ayn Rand famously personified her superior people as self-interested businessmen most notably in Atlas Shrugged 1957. Her rejection of altruism and celebration of the 'creative entrepreneur' is influenced by Nietzsche, however Nietzsche's Übermensch is not a proponent of the market nor does he exploit others.

2 A group of British artists formed in 1920 that showed their works at the Mansard Gallery, at Heal & Sons, London between 26 March and 24 April of that year. The core of the group was made up of the former Vorticists, Wyndham Lewis, Jessica Dismorr, Frederick Etchells, Cuthbert Hamilton, William Roberts and Edward Wadsworth. They were joined by Frank Dobson, Charles Ginner and McKnight Kauffer. The exhibits in the main were characterized essentially by a propensity to angular figuration not far removed from other experimental styles of the period. Group X was arguably an attempt by Wyndham Lewis to revive Vorticism, but this failed.

3 This criticism is broadly aimed at art movements who seek to entertain or to distract audiences afeared that if things get too serious the masses will switch off (or perhaps more likely, switch over). For a detailed critique of Perry (who represents something less offensive than Koons or Warhol but is nevertheless going down the wrong path) see, 'All Wrong, the misguided adventures of an art world hero' in Trebuchet Magazine.

Friends as Enemies and Enemies as Friends... (Wyndham Lewis)
21/11/2016
In "Art"

Saw It Coming. Futurism, Vorticism and the Prescience of H.G. Wells
17/06/2016
In "Features"

And When the Sleeper Wakes? (H.G. Wells, Wyndham Lewis and Nietzsche)
28/11/2016
In "Art"

About Michael Eden > 77 Articles

Michael Eden is the Arts Editor for Trebuchet Magazine, an artist and researcher working in London and the south east, his artistic practice is concentrated on painting and he divides his time between this and lecturing in art history and contextual studies.

« PREVIOUS
Sun, Sea and... Pebbles? Saving Your Summer With A Coarser Response to Beach Erosion

NEXT »
Squeeze It Out: Now You Can Finally Get That Last Drop of Shampoo

BE THE FIRST TO COMMENT

Leave a Reply

Your email address will not be published.

Comment

Name *

Email *

Website

☐ Save my name, email, and website in this browser for the next time I comment.

7 * 6 =

☐ Notify me of follow-up comments by email.

☐ Notify me of new posts by email.

POST COMMENT

This site uses Akismet to reduce spam. Learn how your comment data is processed.

NEW CYCLES IN ART

Technical Innovation
19/11/2019

Awaken Imagined Still Lives
18/11/2019

No Heroic Male Master
12/11/2019

Jane Bustin's V – Tea Bowls (and Other Things) in Paris
31/10/2019

Cyril de Commarque Interview
26/10/2019

Modern Panic Celebrates 10th Anniversary
25/10/2019

Artificialis at the Saatchi Gallery
24/10/2019

Mark Leckey: O' Magic Power of Bleakness
17/10/2019

Jokers: a Film to Fall Out Over?
10/10/2019

1-54 African Contemporary Arts Fair: 2019
09/10/2019

THE TREBUCHET

Trebuchet Magazine: New fine art for contemporary collectors and abundant creatives

TREBUCHET NEWSLETTER SIGN UP

email address
SUBSCRIBE

MEDIA AND PUBLISHING

TAGS

ACTIVISM AFRICA AMERICA ART
BANDS DANCE DIY ELECTRONICA
ENVIRONMENT EXHIBITIONS FESTIVALS
FILM FOLK FOOD GALLERY GIGS
HEALTH INDIE INTERVIEWS
LITERATURE LIVE MAKE BETTER MUSIC
MENTAL HEALTH METAL MUSIC
NATURE PAINTING PHOTOGRAPHY
POINTY HEADS POLITICS PROG
PSYCHOLOGY PUNK RESEARCH ROCK
SCIENCE SEX SOCIETY SONGWRITING
STUPID HUMANS TECHNOLOGY TRAVEL
UK USA WORK