A GUIDE TO PREPARING YOUR PORTFOLIO

BOWSTEAD

This guide is a comprehensive manual on how to compile and prepare your portfolio for jobs, commissions, presentations or art college and is aimed at all areas of the Visual Arts. Whether you are just starting out, a student or you are an established artist but your portfolio needs some improvement, this book is useful for all artists and designers at all levels. It offers essential advice in all areas including art, graphic design and illustration, fashion, 3D design, photography and textiles. It talks you through your personal style and of course the all-important presentation to display your strengths, showing everything you need to consider, structure and the demands of your portfolio. It also looks at digital portfolios, communicating ideas, structure and the demands of your industry. A thorough, informative and easy to read guide, this book is also well illustrated with numerous images of successful portfolios to inspire the reader and help you to create a strong, exciting and competent portfolio.

Jay McCauley Bowstead graduated with a BA Hons in Fashion, and has worked for several companies such as Biba International and Burberry London, helping to research and develop prints and collections. He currently works as a freelance assistant at Les Chiffoniers, working with the creative director of this independent label on all aspects of the design process, including research, drafting and developing the collection.
