SAILBOAT

Have you ever been aboard a trim, lithe, ocean-going sailing vessel, with the sting of salty spray on your face? This flawlessly reproduced Environments recording recreates virtually all the sounds and sensations of a voyage on the briny deep, without the need for leaving your living room.

The knifing of the hull through a surging breaker, the unmistakable creak of the wooden mast under a full load of canvas, the clatter of the rigging, the squeak of the boom vang, the beseeching cries of gulls, the chiming buoys, and the sensuous roar of the restless main are all here, to be enjoyed whenever you need them.

The sloop used for this recording, a 42-foot gaff-rigged ship built at the turn of the century, has sailed the northeast strand almost every

COUNTRY STREAM

There is a small, meandering stream near Stockbridge, Mass. which typifies everything New Englanders attribute to the beauty and tranquility of a babbling brook. Sunlight filters through the trees and sparkles on the water as the stream courtes over mossy stones to its inevitable union with the Housatonic.

The hum of insects, the song of an occasional bird, and the serene peace of the scene have been realistically captured in this stereo/quadraphonic recording.

The tranquil sound of flowing water has traditionally been prized for its sensual effect and relaxing properties. Thus, "Country Stream" is highly conducive to a calm, relaxed atmosphere ideal for quiet social gatherings, and also provides surprising isolation from distractions in
