

Alumni Weekend 2010

Friday 24 – Sunday 26 September

Booking opens Tuesday 1 June
and closes Friday 6 August

Book online at www.alumni.cam.ac.uk/weekend

Booking

Booking will open at 10.00am on Tuesday 1 June and will close at 5.00pm Friday 6 August. Places are limited so book early to avoid disappointment.

Visit our website www.alumni.cam.ac.uk/weekend to book online.

There are no booking fees and your options will be confirmed as soon as your booking is complete.

If you wish to book by post or fax please download the booking form from our website, available in May, or contact the Alumni Office to receive a copy by post. Postal (or faxed) bookings will be accepted prior to, but not processed until, 1 June. We are unable to accept telephone bookings.

You may book on the day at the University Centre (Friday and Sunday) and at the Law Faculty Building (Saturday only), but places may be limited.

Whilst every effort is made to carry out the programme as advertised, all events are subject to change or cancellation.

Cancellations

Refunds will ONLY be given if cancellation is received by 5.00pm on Friday 6 August. Please let us know if you will be unable to attend, no matter how late, as there are always people waiting for places. Certain events have very strict capacities and are incredibly popular.

Please be aware that a photographer and filming team from or commissioned by the University of Cambridge may be taking photographs and filming the Alumni Weekend. The photographs and films may be published, transmitted or broadcast in official University publications and in University publicity materials, including University and University-affiliated websites and may be circulated to the press and other broadcast media and Internet websites for publication, transmission or broadcast. Should you have queries, please contact the Alumni Relations Office.

Alumni Weekend is one of my favourite times of year: the place crackles with energy.

The sources of the excitement are many: the diversity of events and activities, from an exclusive tour of the new galleries in the Polar Museum to an opportunity to listen to an array of fascinating lectures (with none of the pressure of Tripos or dissertation deadlines!); the pleasure of reunions of old friends and introductions to new ones; but more than anything, a shared sense that Cambridge has transformed our own lives as students, and an appreciation that our alma mater changes the world, time and again.

Whether you are a regular at Alumni Weekend or a first-time participant, I very much hope that you will come back to Cambridge this year. The event began in 1991, when we welcomed 230 people back to Cambridge. Over the past 20 years nearly 8,000 alumni have attended the Weekend from each of the 31 Colleges.

The University and your College greatly look forward to welcoming you back in September.

FRIDAY

24 SEPTEMBER

The Help Desk will be open throughout the Alumni Weekend from 8.45am to 5.00pm (4.00pm on Sunday) at the University Centre, Mill Lane. On Saturday you may also book for events, and enquire about the programme, at the Help Desk in the Law Faculty Building from 8.45pm to 5.00pm.

All day

Meet the Alumni Advisory Board

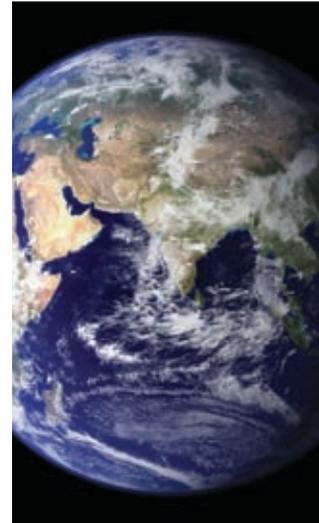

The Alumni Advisory Board exists to represent the interests of Cambridge alumni and to advise Cambridge Alumni Relations Office (CARO) how it can best serve as the graduates' gateway back to Cambridge. You can find a full list of members and the Board's terms of reference at www.alumni.cam.ac.uk/contact/advisoryboard.

Throughout the weekend there will be an information point next to the Help Desk where alumni are invited to find out more about the Board and its work. A number of the Board members will also be attending the Weekend and will join the Vice-Chancellor in welcoming alumni to the Opening Reception at The Fitzwilliam Museum on Friday evening at 6.00pm.

SATURDAY 25 SEPTEMBER

From 8.45am to 5.00pm the Help Desk will be open for bookings and enquiries in the Law Faculty Building, Sidgwick Site. All lectures will take place on the Sidgwick Site, unless otherwise indicated. A final venues sheet, detailing the exact location of each lecture, will be available online in early September. Every attempt has been made to cater for all tastes with the lecture programme. Lecturers have been selected so that as many as possible of the six Schools of the University are represented in each time slot – Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences, Biological and Physical Sciences, Technology, Business & Medicine.

Free fair trade tea and coffee will be available on Saturday only from 8.45am, 10.30am and 2.45pm, from the marquee on the Sidgwick Site.

9.30am – 10.30am
Herculaneum: The Archaeology of Catastrophe

The two cities destroyed by Vesuvius in AD 79, Pompeii and Herculaneum, offer not only an incomparable window onto past life, but onto the impact of natural catastrophe. New evidence and insights derive from a project which seeks to protect the site from an ongoing, man-made catastrophe.

Dr Andrew Wallace-Hadrill has been Master of Sidney Sussex College since 2009. Previously Director of the British School at Rome for 14 years, he has directed projects in both Pompeii and Herculaneum.

Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences

9.30am – 10.30am
Social Mobility in Modern Britain

There is much talk in the media about 'social mobility' – what does it mean? Is there more or less of it? What role might education play? This lecture presents historical data about social mobility over the last century and tries to cut through the confusion about definitions and trends.

Dr Peter Mandler is Professor of Modern Cultural History and Bailey College Lecturer in History at Gonville and Caius College. He works on the social, cultural and intellectual history of Britain over the past 200 years.

Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences

9.30am – 10.30am
Reaping the Benefits of Plant Science for Food Security

It has been estimated that a growing population will need substantially more food than can be produced using current technology. This lecture will describe ways that modern science can help meet this challenge in a manner that is sustainable.

Sir David Baulcombe has wide interests in plant molecular biology and his current research investigates genetic regulation and disease resistance in plants including crops. He is the Regius Professor of Botany at the University and Royal Society Research Professor.

Physical & Biological Sciences

9.30am – 10.30am
A Journey Round Saturn, its Rings and Moons

Saturn is the most beautiful planet in our Solar System. Most famous for its bright yet ethereal rings, the gas giant has over 60 natural satellites in orbit around it – and one non-natural satellite: NASA's Cassini spacecraft, which has provided many of the results and images to be featured in this talk.

Dr Carolin Crawford is an astronomer at the Institute of Astronomy and a Fellow of Emmanuel College. She is a regular contributor to BBC Radio 4's Home Planet, and to the Naked Astronomers monthly podcast. In 2009 she was noted as one of the UKRC's 'Women of Outstanding Achievement' for the communication of science with a contribution to society.

Physical & Biological Sciences

9.30am – 10.30am
The Cambridge Conservation Initiative: Transforming the Prospects for Life on Earth

The richness and diversity of life on Earth is under increasing threat from human induced environmental change. Yet we depend on much of this biological diversity for our own survival. This talk will describe the exciting steps Cambridge, through the Cambridge Conservation Initiative, is taking to understand and conserve biodiversity and the 'natural capital' it so crucially provides.

Dr Mike Rands is the Executive Director of the Cambridge Conservation Initiative, a collaboration between the University and leading biodiversity conservation organisations in the Cambridge area.

Physical & Biological Sciences

9.30am – 10.30am
Understanding Stem Cells: Hope, Hype and Reality

Stem cell research provokes both exaggerated claims of miracle cures and moral outrage over 'cannibalism' of human embryos. In reality, stem cells are basic building blocks of life and objects of scientific wonder. Unlocking their secrets will illuminate our understanding of fundamental processes in human biology and disease.

Professor Austin Smith is the Director of the Wellcome Trust Centre for Stem Cell Research. Professor Smith is also a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, an elected member of EMBO, and a Fellow of the Royal Society of London. He was awarded the Louis-Jeantet Prize for Medicine in 2010.

Technology, Business & Medicine

9.30am – 10.30am
Camsemi: From a Crazy Idea to a Cleantech Company

The talk will disclose the idea that led to the foundation of Cambridge Semiconductor (Camsemi), a spin-off from Cambridge University and one of the top Cleantech companies in Europe. The development road, the ups and downs, the dreams and the regrets, together with future prospects will be presented.

Florin Udrea is a Professor in Semiconductor Engineering and Head of the High Voltage Microelectronics and Sensors Laboratory at the University and a founder of Camsemi. Dr Tanya Trajkovic is a Director in Camsemi. She received her PhD from King's College in 2001.

Technology, Business & Medicine

11.15am – 12.15pm
Composing for the Führer: Music and Aesthetics in Nazi Germany

The period 1933-45 is often seen as a dead period in German music. This lecture will explore some of the reasons for the dearth of great music during these years, starting from more obvious factors such as censorship and emigration, but focussing ultimately on the Nazi aesthetic of the beautiful.

Dr Martin Ennis is a Senior Lecturer at the Faculty of Music and Fellow and Director of Music at Girton College. He combines his university life with a busy career as a performer, specialising as a continuo player. He has been a prize winner at several international competitions and, in addition to serving as principal keyboard player of the London Mozart Players, he performs regularly with orchestras around the world.

Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences

11.15am – 12.15pm
Voices of Vanishing Worlds

More than 2,400 of the world's 6,500 languages are endangered and will likely disappear without trace by 2100. Why is this happening, and why does language death matter? This lecture considers how scholars can collaborate with native speakers to collect, protect and disseminate the voices of these vanishing worlds.

Dr Mark Turin is a linguistic anthropologist. He is currently a Research Associate at the Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology at the University, where he directs both the recently established World Oral Literature Project and the Digital Himalaya Project.

11.15am – 12.15pm
The Dark Matter of Cambridge Philosophy

The contribution of philosophers including W.E. Johnson, G.F. Stout and A.N. Whitehead has been overshadowed by the powerful intellectual attraction exerted by Russell, Wittgenstein and Moore. This talk will focus on these now muted voices and look at the influence they had on the development of philosophy in Cambridge.

Dr Fraser MacBride read philosophy as an undergraduate at St. John's College, Cambridge. He is a University Lecturer in the Faculty of Philosophy and a Fellow of Trinity Hall.

11.15am – 12.15pm
Autistic Talent

The savant abilities of some individuals with autism are well known. This lecture explores other autistic skills and talents and will present recent research showing that people with autism are better able to utilise cognitive facilities to greater advantage compared to 'typical' individuals.

Dr Kate Plaisted Grant completed her PhD at King's College, Cambridge in 1994 and became a Research Fellow at St John's College. She became a University Lecturer in 1998 and was awarded the University of Cambridge Plikington Prize for excellence in teaching in 2009.

11.15am – 12.15pm
Emerging Infectious Diseases from Animals: Can we prevent the next Pandemic?

Measles, SARS, AIDS and swine flu all originated from animals, including both wildlife and farmed animals. Studying the factors that underlie emergence, including how animal and human populations interact, is essential if we are ever to prevent future pandemics. Studies involve situations as diverse as urban fruit bats in Africa and pigs and pig farmers in East Anglia.

Professor James Wood is the Director of the Cambridge Infectious Diseases Consortium (CIDC), based in the Department of Veterinary Medicine and was appointed Alborada Professor of Equine and Farm Animal Science in 2008.

11.15am – 12.15pm
A Revolutionary New Treatment for Multiple Sclerosis?

In the early 1980s, a new class of drug was invented in Cambridge: monoclonal antibodies. The first of these (alemtuzumab) is now a treatment of leukaemia. But since 1991, it has also been developed as a treatment of multiple sclerosis. Results to date show astonishing effectiveness. By 2012 it may have become a licensed treatment.

Dr Alasdair Coles came to Cambridge in 1993 to do a PhD and train in neurology. He has been working on alemtuzumab since then. He is now a University Lecturer in Clinical Neuroimmunology and a consultant neurologist at the Cambridge University Hospital Foundation Trust.

Engineering Our Way to Sustainable Economic Growth

The recent financial turmoil has reinforced the importance of industry to economic growth. Engineering underpins the whole industrial 'value chain' from the development of new scientific and technical ideas to the design of complex global industrial systems. The lecture will describe how engineering lies at the heart of Cambridge's thriving 'ecosystem' and the lessons that this might hold for the wider economy.

Professor Mike Gregory CBE is Head of the Manufacturing and Management Division of Cambridge University's Department of Engineering. Professor Gregory has served on a range of public bodies and is currently a member of the UK Ministerial Advisory Group on Manufacturing and Chairman of the UK Manufacturing Professors Forum.

1.45pm – 2.45pm Painting St Petersburg

While St Petersburg is famed for its lavish palaces, the city also gave birth to Russia's rich painting tradition. As Russian collectors dominate the market and Russian paintings command record-breaking prices, this lecture considers the outstanding painters of the eighteenth and nineteenth century, who bridge the gap between the spirituality of icon painting, and the iconoclastic developments of the avant-garde.

Dr Rosalind P. Blakesley is a Senior Lecturer in the History of Art and a Fellow of Pembroke College. She has published widely on Russian art and has curated exhibitions in London, Moscow and Washington DC. She is now working on a book about Russian painting and patronage from 1757-1881.

Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences

1.45pm – 2.45pm Changing Views of the Anglo-Saxon Migration to England : History, Genetics and Archaeology

In the year celebrated as the anniversary of the official end of Roman Britain in 410AD it may seem surprising that the migration of Anglo-Saxons to England is still a contentious issue. This lecture will show how the continuing debate derives from the different ways in which English identity has been, and is, defined.

Dr Catherine Hills is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Archaeology and a Fellow of Newnham College. She presented two TV series on archaeology for Channel 4, 'Blood of the British' and 'Down to Earth'.

Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences

1.45pm – 2.45pm Humans, Martians and Language

What is language? And how many languages are there? These might seem like questions humans are much better placed to answer than, say, martians. Strikingly, linguists, whose primary concern is, after all, language, do not agree on who the better judge would be. This talk will show why that is.

Dr Theresa Biberauer is a Senior Research Associate in the Department of Linguistics and Director of Studies in Linguistics for Corpus Christi, Lucy Cavendish, Magdalene and St John's, and a Bye-fellow in English and Linguistics at Downing.

1.45pm – 2.45pm
Particle Physics and Experiments at the CERN Large Hadron Collider

The largest terrestrial experiment promises to deliver a Nobel-winning discovery of the Higgs boson, which is responsible for giving sub-atomic particles their mass. After a review of what is currently known about particle physics and a description of the experiment, this lecture will look at how dark matter may be produced and measured at the Large Hadron Collider.

Dr Ben Allanach has been an Associate/Director of Studies in Mathematics for Clare Hall since 2008 and was made a Reader in Theoretical Physics in 2007. He is interested in interpreting data coming from the Large Hadron Collider in order to find new particles and forces.

Deconstructing Cancer

Cancers remain difficult to treat effectively. The problem is that cancers are evolving targets: cancer drugs select for resistant tumour cells that then regenerate a resistant tumour. However, evidence is growing that many, maybe all cancers, share the same Achilles' heel and that this could be exploited in new therapies.

Dr Gerard Evan's research is focused on understanding the processes responsible for genesis and maintenance of cancers, in particular cancers of the pancreas, colon, brain, skin and liver. He is an author of over 190 scientific publications and in 2009, he was elected to the Sir William Dunn chair of Biochemistry at the University.

1.45pm – 2.45pm
Inside the Cell: Trafficking, Traffic Jams and Hijackers

Each of our ~100,000,000,000,000 cells is a miniature world, filled with different compartments and tiny vesicles that traffic cargo from one compartment to another. This lecture will discuss how the trafficking machinery works, what happens when it malfunctions, and how it can be hijacked by pathogens like viruses.

Professor Margaret Robinson was educated at Smith College and Harvard University, and moved to Cambridge in 1982 to work as a postdoctoral fellow at the MRC Laboratory of Molecular Biology. Since 1989, she has been a member of the Department of Clinical Biochemistry and is currently based in the Cambridge Institute for Medical Research (CIMR), where she is Professor of Molecular Cell Biology.

Every Breath You Take... I'll be Measuring You

This lecture will describe a novel technique for non-invasive monitoring of lung-function. The method can be applied to patient groups who cannot be measured with conventional apparatus (eg babies) and will describe the engineering research, the medical implications and the process of producing a commercial instrument.

Dr Joan Lasenby is a Lecturer in the Signal Processing Group in the Engineering Department and is a Fellow and Director of Studies at Trinity College. Dr Richard Iles is a Consultant Paediatric Respiratory Consultant at Addenbrookes Hospital, Cambridge. He is currently Director of the Paediatric Cystic Fibrosis Network for Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire. Dr Gareth Roberts is CEO of PnumaCare Ltd. He has extensive experience in the biotechnology industry and in applications of a range of technologies for developing new approaches to therapy. Dr Ward Hills is CTO of PnumaCare Ltd. He has over 15 years experience in the development and commercialisation of high technology and has worked extensively with the University.

3.30pm – 5.15pm The Vice-Chancellor's Address

The Vice-Chancellor of the University, Professor Alison Richard, will welcome alumni to Lady Mitchell Hall and introduce Sir Leszek Borysiewicz who will succeed her as Vice-Chancellor, at the end of her seven year term on Friday October 1 2010.

Vice-Chancellor
Professor Alison Richard

Vice-Chancellor Elect
Sir Leszek Borysiewicz

Dame Fiona Reynolds DBE

Venue Lady Mitchell Hall, Sidgwick Site, with a 'live relay' to Little Hall, Sidgwick Site

Other Information Please note, there will be a very short break between the Vice-Chancellor's Address and Nature in the 21st Century. Latecomers will not be admitted after 4.15pm. For those wishing to attend other lectures in the 4.15pm – 5.15pm slot, there will be a live relay to Little Hall from 3.30pm – 4.00pm.

Followed by: Nature in the 21st Century by Dame Fiona Reynolds DBE

"As a society we've lost direct contact with nature and have diminished it so badly that we are suffering. There are all kinds of benefits that can be ascribed to nature – everything from the technical and functional (food production and ecosystem health, plant diversity for medicine etc) to the spiritual (nature makes people happy). We have been quite clever at making functional arguments in a world that operates by quantitative rules, but they will only take us so far – and that's not far enough.

Now is the time to revive society's passion for and dependence on nature and how utterly lost we are if we damage it beyond repair.

To achieve this we need to articulate nature as fundamental to the nation's health and well-being; drawing unashamedly on people's passion for nature and access to it; but setting it within a broader context of ecosystem health and wellbeing. We need to raise people's sights about what's happening and needs to happen, using evocative species like the honey bee to illustrate the problem. And we need to raise the ambitions of politicians to be the generation that saw the light and put in place the foundation for the future of life itself."

Dame Fiona Reynolds DBE (Newnham 1976) has been Director-General of the National Trust since January 2001. Before taking up the post she was Director of the Women's Unit in the Cabinet Office and was previously Director of the Council for the Protection of Rural England (now Campaign to Protect Rural England) and Secretary to the Council for National Parks.

SATURDAY 25 SEPTEMBER

4.15pm – 5.15pm The Crusades in Literature

Many twelfth and thirteenth-century texts address the subject of the Crusades in an oblique fashion. Either they turn them into a pretext for a fictional travelogue or they emphasise the strange and other-worldly character of the people and places in the Middle East at the expense of any account of the aggression and hardships encountered. Despite this inability to confront the events directly, however, they provide a very clear indication of how the events were received by the public back home and how the traumas undergone on both sides resurface in fiction.

Dr Bill Burgwinkle is a specialist in Medieval French and Occitan literature, gender and sexuality, and critical theory.

Physical & Biological Sciences

4.15pm – 5.15pm Computation of Emotions in Man and Machines

With rapid advances in key computing technologies and the heightened user expectation of computers, the development of socially and emotionally adept technologies is becoming a necessity. This talk describes the inference of people's mental states from facial expressions, vocal nuances, body posture and gesture, and other physiological signals, and also considers the expression of emotions by robots and cartoon avatars.

Peter Robinson is Professor of Computer Technology in the Computer Laboratory at the University, where he leads the Rainbow Group working on computer graphics and interaction, and is a Fellow of Gonville & Caius.

Booking

Booking will open on Tuesday 1 June and closes on Friday 6 August.

Please visit our website www.alumni.cam.ac.uk/weekend to book online. There are no booking fees and your options will be confirmed as soon as your booking is complete. If you wish to book by post or fax, please download the booking form from our website, available in May, or contact the Alumni Office to receive a copy by post. Unfortunately we are unable to accept telephone bookings.

Online booking will open at 10.00am on Tuesday 1 June. Postal (or faxed) bookings will be accepted prior to this date but will not be processed until 10.00am on Tuesday 1 June.

Places are limited so book early to avoid disappointment. Booking will close at 5.00pm on Friday 6 August. You may book on the day at the University Centre (Friday and Sunday) and at the Law Faculty Building (Saturday only), but places may be limited.

Name badges will be available to collect from the University Centre and Law Faculty during the weekend.

Costs

- There is a registration fee (covering all lectures and tours*) for the whole Alumni Weekend of £65 per person
- The single day registration fee is £45 per person
- A special discounted rate for the whole weekend is available to all those who matriculated in the last fifteen years (including and after 1995) of £55 for the whole weekend
- 12-18 year olds accompanying an adult are free
- Single lectures and tours booked on the day are £10 each (subject to availability and maximum two events per person)

* Events which incur an extra charge are detailed in the programme

Whilst we have made every effort to structure the programme to allow adequate time to get from one event to the next, there are some instances where this has been unachievable. Please take careful note of the timing of the events and allow at least 15 minutes to get to your next session.

Cancellations

Refunds will ONLY be given if cancellation is received by 5.00pm on Friday 6 August. Please let us know if you will be unable to attend, no matter how late, as there are always people waiting for places. Certain events have very strict capacities and are incredibly popular.

Refreshments

The University Centre provides a wide range of facilities. Please visit www.unicen.cam.ac.uk or telephone +44 (0)1223 337766 for full details.

Pre-booked packed lunches are available on the Sidgwick Site on Saturday – see page 16 for details.

Free fair trade tea and coffee will be available on Saturday only from 8.45am, 10.30am and 2.45pm, in the marquee on the Sidgwick Site.

Some events include light refreshments (for which there may be a charge where noted).

Accommodation

Please visit www.alumni.cam.ac.uk/benefits/camcard/accommodation for up to 15% off accommodation at local hotels. Details of College accommodation can also be found at www.alumni.cam.ac.uk/weekend For commercial accommodation contact Cambridge Tourist Information: Tel: 0871 226 8006 for UK enquiries or +44 (0)1223 464732 from overseas. www.visitcambridge.com

September is a very busy time in Cambridge, so it is advisable to book early. Colleges in particular need to be contacted as far in advance as possible, as they will be accommodating reunion dinners.

Tours and Transport

Whilst most tours take place in or around the city centre, some may require travel further afield. Where indicated, transport will be available on Friday and Sunday. All transport will depart from the University Centre at least 30 minutes before the start time of the tour, unless otherwise indicated. Please book in advance and arrive in good time!

Public Transport

For information about Park and Ride, see Cambridge County Council's website: www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk/transport/around/park_ride

The 'Uni 4' bus runs from Madingley Road Park and Ride to Addenbrooke's Hospital Bus Station, via many University sites. Please see www.admin.cam.ac.uk/offices/embs/travel/bus/uni4.pdf for a timetable and www.stagecoachbus.com/timetables/Camguide2004.pdf for a map of local bus routes.

There is a regular express service to Cambridge from London King's Cross station, with non-stop trains, every 30 minutes that take about 45 minutes. More details on the timetable are available from National Rail www.nationalrail.co.uk. The railway station is 1.3 miles away from the University Centre. A taxi from the train station to the University Centre costs around £6.00 and should take no more than 10 minutes. CARO is not responsible for the content of external internet sites.

Parking

Venues with parking are mentioned under the individual entries in this programme. If there is no mention of parking in the 'other information' section, there is NO parking available.

Parking facilities in Cambridge are very restricted and visitors are advised to use public transport.

Doubletree by Hilton in Mill Lane has a public car-park behind the hotel which has 130 spaces and is just two minutes walk from the University Centre.

Subject to availability, registered disabled drivers displaying an official disabled badge may reserve a car parking space by calling University Centre Reception on +44 (0)1223 337766.

You can reserve a parking space in advance at the University Park & Cycle facility which is located at the West Cambridge Site, off Clerk Maxwell Road (approx 30 minutes walk from the University Centre) at a cost of £10.00 for three days. Please select this option at the time of booking and note it is not compulsory to cycle. The barriers will be lowered from 8am to 8pm and cars can be left overnight providing that your parking ticket (supplied after booking) is prominently displayed in vehicle.

Please visit www.cambridge.gov.uk and follow the link on the left hand side for 'Car Parks' for full details of parking in Cambridge including maps, tariffs and Park and Ride details.

Access

Many tours are wheelchair accessible; however, some may involve a lot of walking, standing or climbing of stairs. Please let us know if you are a wheelchair user, have serious mobility problems or require full access information.

The 2010-2011 Alumni Worldwide Directory

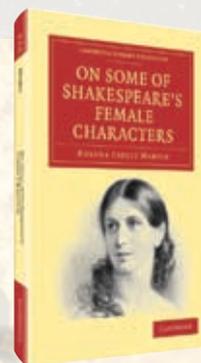

Imagine Cambridge in the 19th century ...

... Professor Henslow is reading extracts to the Philosophical Society from the Beagle letters of his student Charles Darwin. The intrepid Smith sisters are heading for Sinai to search for any manuscripts that the German scholar Tischendorf may have missed. Sir Richard Jebb's edition of Sophocles is setting new standards for the editing of classical texts, and Lord Kelvin and Peter Guthrie Tait are revolutionising the world of physics. Meanwhile the government of the day has appointed a commission to look into the finances and running of the ancient universities ...
